Qualifications

Please describe your relevant analytical skills.

I work in public education overseeing Special Education services, due process, and paperwork. That said, my career is one of continuously analyzing services provided to students and the documentation of that service with federal and state Special Education laws.

Please describe your ability to be impartial.

My career requires applying federal and state laws to every situation as if it were an independent situation without regard to district politics, individual school situations, and/or colleagues' beliefs and/or wishes. This has put me at odds with my own supervisor at times. But I will always err on the side of applying the law fairly and equally.

Please describe your appreciation for the City of Austin's diverse demographics and geography.

Although I am a white woman, I have a multicultural family and, prior to moving when seeking to buy a house here, I told my real estate woman very specifically that I would not live in a gated community because gates divide us and I needed a house in a mixed community. She found me my current home which I do not plan on moving from ever and I bought it sight unseen. I worked for two years at Huston-Tillotson University, your oldest post-secondary institution and historically Black college before returning to K-12 public education. I have spent my entire adult life by choice involved with families from other countries and Americans with diverse cultural backgrounds.

Please provide any other information you wish to be considered during the selection of the most qualified applicants for the Commission.

I moved to Austin from Minneapolis which had the kind of city council representation that you are now moving to (without the one citywide position). I always wondered how this city could actually believe that non-community based representation could be fair and equal for low income communities of color given that your city council members predominantly lived west of Austin. I live in the 78744 zip code and I am certain that the current city council members would not even drive through my neighborhood in broad daylight, much less consider my neighborhood when making decisions for the city that would impact me.

Having representation from one's community means I can be assured that my representative knows my community, is committed to it because their own quality of life is on the line, and can be more available to me. My city council member in Minneapolis met monthly at a local cafe on Saturday mornings for neighborhood residents to meet and share their concerns with him. He also sent out a monthly email newsletter to keep us abreast of what was going on in the city government, highlighting things that were of particular interest to us in the community, and letting us know of opportunities and resources available to us.

I am very happy to see that Austin is going to have city council members who live in all sections of the city. I would love to be part of the process that helps facilitate it.
